“ I met Hayden gaming online in 2012. We spent so many nights playing with our group of friends, growing up and making friendships that spanned years and countries. While it has been years since we last really talked, Hayden was always the first person who came to mind when I was asked to speak about a person who personified who I wanted to be “when I grew up”: he didn’t always have the answers, but he would be the first person there to support you. He always had a joke, or a funny story to tell the Xbox party. He was one of those people that didn’t care who you were, or where you were from, if you were good people, he was your kind of person. The last time we talked, Hayden told me about how fulfilling his life had become, how much purpose he found in being a father and how much his heart had been filled when he found his other half.

I’m sending my love, hope and prayers to all of you during this hard time.
